

Contents

Acknowledgements	v
The Authors	vi
Summary	1
1 Introduction	5
1.1 Research context and purpose	5
1.2 Methodology	5
1.3 Timescales	7
1.4 The Management and Leadership Framework	7
2 Findings	9
2.1 Planning and visioning	9
2.2 Organising and connecting	13
2.2.1 Is IT irrelevant to performance?	14
2.3 Staffing and supporting	18
2.3.1 Staff attitude surveys	18
2.3.2 Training and appraisal	19
2.3.3 Valuing the contribution of employees	19
2.3.4 Harassment policies	20
2.3.5 The contribution of the top team	20
2.3.6 Obstacles to good performance	20
2.3.7 Flexible working	21
2.3.8 Controlling and challenging/celebrating	21
2.3.9 Individual versus team performance monitoring	23
2.3.10 Dedicated resources for service development	23
3 Management development programme requirements	25

4	Conclusions	27
4.1	Is there a secret ingredient making for good performance?	32
4.2	Concluding observations	33
Appendix A	Management and leadership framework.....	35
Appendix B	Hersey's Situational Leadership Model	37
Appendix C	Generalised listing of case studies	39
Appendix D	Direct reports' survey	41

List of figures

Figure 1	Management and leadership framework.....	1
Figure 2.1	Management and leadership framework.....	9
Figure 2.2	Golman's 5 components of emotional intelligence	17
Figure 3.1	Management development programme components	26
Figure 4.1	Key characteristics of HB managers	30
Figure A.1	Management and leadership framework.....	35
Figure B.1	Situational leadership	38
Figure D.1	How important is it for a Housing Benefit Manager to display the following characteristics?	42
Figure D.2	To what extent does your manager display these characteristics?	43
Figure D.3	How important is it for a Housing Benefit Manager to display the following characteristics?	44
Figure D.4	To what extent does your manager display these characteristics?	44